Documentation

	Lee p 16	Sach 16	The Spray of American Flog State in Sordanelle White in Sordanelle South South in Sordanelle South So
Many varied stories have been Whith was painted on the prominent butte in Jordanelle	Many Varied Stories have to Written on how the first to assisted on the or butter in Jordanelle		A W II III

AMERICAN Mad on in Jordan elle, Wasatch, Utah

FAMILY HISTORY
Documentation

is that on yet unknown date Benny A Norm's painted the American Flag on American Flag Butte in Jordanelle, Wasatch Co. Wah. The Tother faces of wasatch The painted on a chiff near his home. The flag can be seen from the highway and was repained yearly under the direction of Isabelle Baur who maintained the tradition until her death since then it has been painted by Veterans of Foreign Wars of Heber. Haistone's greatest industrial development, apart from its support to the mining industry, came in 1929 when the Great Lakes Timber Company was established by Elmer Peterson, a Denver lumberana, and Mich aed J. Sweeney, a veteran western timberman. The lumbering operation prospered and in 1933 Mr. Sweeney became general manager and the sole owner in 1946. The company continued with its headquarters a Hailstone will 1960 when it moved to LaPoint in Unitab Country, Before it moved from Hailstone tin forest land had reduced the available cutting timber in the Hailstone are of the Wasatch National Forest, which necessitated the move away from the area. Schools and a branch of the Church existed for a time in Hailstone The first school and a small cabin across the road from the William D Moulton home. George Wootton was the first teacher and taught just one year. The next school was held in a little log cabin near the Cluff home and continued there several years until a larger building was constructed near Keelley to handle all the school children in the area. The Elkhorn Branch of the Church also held its meetings here. A new, red brick school house was finally built in Keetley and was used by all the families in the area until the Wasatch School Board consolidated school noil are new, widened highway hardly make the parties of the control of the property was the school children in the area. The Elkhorn Branch of the Church also held its meetings here.	e	Date:	Fact: Theory	Document or Source of Information
Benny A. Norms painted the American Flag on Inverican Flag Eutte in Jordanelle Wasatch Co. Wah. The Benjamin Norris property was known for an American Flather benjamed on a cliff near his home. The flag can be seen from the highway, and was repainted yearly under the direction of Isabelle Bau who maintained the tradition until her death since then it has been painte by Veterans of Foreign Wars of Heber. Hailstone's greatest industrial development, apart from its support to the mining industry, came in 1929 when the Great Lakes Timber Company was established by Elmer Peterson, a Deriver lumberman, and Mich apel, Sweeney, a veteran western timberman. The lumbering operation of the mining industry, came in 1946. The company continued with its headquarters a Hailstone until 1960 when it moved to LaPoint in Unitah County, Before it moved from Hailstone the company was one of the largest industria lumber and timber companies in the country. Recreational development in forest land had reduced the available cutting timber in the Hailstone area of the Wasatch National Forest, which necessitated the move away from the area. Schools and a branch of the Church existed for a time in Hailstone The first school and a small cabin across the road from the William D Moulton home. George Wootton was the first teacher and taught instone year. The next school was held in a little log cabin near the Cliff home and continued there several years until a larger building was constructed near Keetley to handle all the school children in the area. The Elkhorn Branch of the Church also held its meetings here. A new, red brick school house was finally built in Keetley and was used by all the families in the area until the Wasatch School Board consolidated schooling in the Heber schools. Some farming and dairy operations still continue at Hailstone, but morotists driving through the area on a new, widened highway hardly	1	. 2 18	one conflicting + confusing story	1. ABUMOD 1121, 693 (Poter Abalzaala de Kestan)
Benny A Norm's painted the American Flag Butte in Jovaanelle, Wasatch Co. Wah. Hah. Haltone's greatest industrial development, apart from its support to the mining industry, came in 1929 when the Great Lakes Timber Company was established by Elmer Peterson, a Denver Imberran, and Michael Sowen; in 1946. The company was one of the largest industrial lumber and timber companies in the country. Becretion with the sole owner in 1946. The company was one of the largest industrial lumber and timber companies in the country. Becretion was near of the Wasatch National Forest, which necessitated the move away from the area. Schools and a branch of the Church existed for a time in Hailstone to the Moulton home. George Wootton was the first teacher and taught instone year. The next school was held in a little log cabin near the Claff home and continued there several years until a larger building was constructed near Keetley to handle all the school children in the area. The Elkhorn Branch of the Church also held its meetings here. A new, red brick school house was finally built in Keetley and was used by all the families in the area until the Wasatch School Board consolidated schooling in the Heber schools. Some farming and dairy operations still continue at Hailstone, but onto risks driving through the area on a new, widened highway hardly motorists driving through the area on a new, widened highway hardly motorists driving through the area on a new, widened highway hardly motorists driving through the area on a new, widened highway hardly motorists driving through the area on a new, widened highway hardly motorists driving through the area on a new, widened highway hardly motorists driving through the area on a new, widened highway hardly	_		is that on an get unknown date	1142
Fisher—they built a number of small homes on the property which he rented to men working at the Park Utah Mine. The Benjamin Norris property was known for an American Flathat he painted on a cliff near his home. The flag can be seen from the highway, and was repainted yearly under the direction of Isabelle Baum who maintained the tradition until her death since then it has been painted by Veterans of Foreign Wars of Heber. Hailstone's greatest industrial development, apart from its support to the mining industry, came in 1929 when the Great Lakes Timber Company any was established by Elmer Peterson, a Denver lumberman, and Michael J. Sweeney, a veteran western timberman. The lumbering operation was established by Elmer Peterson, a Denver lumbering operation was established by Elmer Peterson, a Denver lumbering operation was established by Elmer Peterson, a Denver lumbering operation and in 1933 Mr. Sweeney, became general manager and the sole owner in 1946. The company continued with its headquarters a Hailstone until 1960 when it moved to LaPoint in Unitah County, Before it moved from Hailstone the company was one of the largest industrial lumber and timber companies in the country. Recreational development in forest land had reduced the available cutting timber in the Hailstone area of the Wasatch National Forest, which necessitated the move away from the area. Schools and a branch of the Church existed for a time in Hailstone area of the Wasatch National Forest, which necessitated the move away from the area. Schools and a branch of the Church existed for a time in Hailstone area of the Wasatch National Forest, which necessitated the move away from the area. The first school and a small cabin across the road from the William D Moulton home. George Wootton was the first teacher and taught just one year. The next school was the first teacher and taught just one year. The next school was the first teacher and taught just have the proposed to the proposed to the country of the Church as held its meetings he	1		Benny A Norns painted the	THE "OTHER FACES" OF WASATCH 1121
buildings of a very happy people. 1963			Butte in Jordanelle, Wasatch Co.,	Fisher—they built a number of small homes on the property which he rented to men working at the Park Utah Mine. The Benjamin Norris property was known for an American Flag that he painted on a cliff near his home. The flag can be seen from the highway, and was repainted yearly under the direction of Isabelle Baum who maintained the tradition until her death since then it has been painted by Veterans of Foreign Wars of Heber. Hailstone's greatest industrial development, apart from its support to the mining industry, came in 1929 when the Great Lakes Timber Company was established by Elmer Peterson, a Denver lumberman, and Michael J. Sweeney, a veteran western timberman. The lumbering operation prospered and in 1933 Mr. Sweeney became general manager and then sole owner in 1946. The company continued with its headquarters at Hailstone until 1960 when it moved to LaPoint in Unitah County, Before it moved from Hailstone the company, was one of the largest industrial lumber and timber companies in the country. Recreational developments in forest land had reduced the available cutting timber in the Hailstone area of the Wasatch National Forest, which necessitated the move away from the area. Schools and a branch of the Church existed for a time in Hailstone. The first school and a small cabin across the road from the William D. Moulton home. George Wootton was the first teacher and taught just one year. The next school was held in a little log cabin near the Cluff home and continued there several years until a larger building was constructed near Keetley to handle all the school children in the area. The Elkhorn Branch of the Church also held its meetings here. A new, red brick school house was finally built in Keetley and was used by all the families in the area until the Wasatch School Board consolidated schooling in the Heber schools. Some farming and dairy operations still continue at Hailstone, but motorists driving through the area on a new, widened highway hardly slow down now as they pass through what us